- Liz: I'm really pleased with the jacket I bought.
- Alison: It looks great on you and it wasn't expensive.
- Liz: Do you think these shoes will go with it?
- Alison: Yes, they're very smart.
- Liz: You don't think they're too fancy?
- Alison: Not really. They're just right!
- Liz: What about you, Alison? What do you want to buy?
- Alison: I need to buy sunglasses. What do you think of these?
- Liz: Hmm. They're a little old-fashioned. I like these.
- Alison: Yes, they're nice. I'll try them on.

Shop Assistant: Hello. Can I help you?
Megan: Yes. I bought these headphones yesterday. When I got home, they didn't work.

Shop Assistant: OK. I need to see your receipt, please.

Megan: Here it is.

Shop Assistant: Thanks. Yes, you're right. There is a problem. Would you like a refund or would you like us to replace them?

Megan: I'd like you to replace them, please. Can I have them in a different colour?

Shop Assistant: Certainly.

Megan: I'll take the blue ones please. Are they the same price?

Shop Assistant: Yes, they cost the same.

Megan: Great!

Radio presenter:

Good evening and welcome to Money Talks. If you don't like carrying a lot of notes and coins, then you should thank Frank McNamara. He's the man who invented the credit card. People say that he got the idea in 1949 when, at the end of a meal in a restaurant, he found out that he didn't have any cash with him. In 1950, he created Diner's Club. In the beginning, 27 restaurants participated and 200 people joined the club. Each card cost $3. By the end of the first year, 20,000 people had Diner's Club credit cards. Now, more than 75% of people in the USA have got at least one credit card. Credit cards have changed a lot since then. You can get a credit card that smells good, one with your picture on it and there are watches and bracelets that are also credit cards. You can also use your mobile phone as a credit card. Soon, it's possible that credit cards will disappear!
