Trip to Granada

On Tuesday we went to Granada, a trip for the Portuguese , German and Bulgarian students to see thr following sites.

First, we went to the Alhambra, there we went to see the cathedral and they kept asking questions and taking pictures . Then, we had free time to toour the streets of Granada and at noon , we went to eat at a bar.

Then, we went to see the Albaicin and at 8:00 we went back to Castro.

It was a very nice experience for everyone and in which they could see a lot of what is done in Andalusia.

Trip to Córdoba

On Thursday, we went to Córdoba. First, we visited The Mosque. Álvaro, the history teacher of 4ºESO A told us how the Mosque was built and about the muslim governors before going inside. I had been there four or five times so, I showed them the most beautiful places. They loved the part of the Cathedral.

Later, when we finished the visit we had time to buy some souvenirs and the bulgarian girls asked me to buy a skirt to dance flamenco because of the last day, when we visited the flamenco dancer, Ana García for an interview. Then, we visited the Judería quarter, a synagogue and Maimonide's statue. We touched his feet for good luck.

They were so hungry because they are used to have lunch earlier, so we tied to arrive quicklier to the Tendillas' square and there we separated in different groups. Most of them went to Burger King but, I am so fed up with that, so I decided to go to "100 montaditos". I tried to translate the menu for them the best I could and they ordered. We laughed a lot of after having lunch, and they thought that there must have been somenthing strange in the food. Later, we took a photo and we went shopping. As we were so tired because of the intense week, we decided to return to Castro earlier than planned, around 7 o'clock.

In Castro...

Regarding the stay of our foreign friends in Castro del Río, I have to say that i am sure that they will miss the town. Why? Because they had fun and we shared a lot of good moments, they liked the spanish weather, the decorated andalusian streets and how not, the food.

During the time they were here, they visited the Albacor company, museums and the old neighborhood of the town "La Villa". We had dinner in houses of the Spanish students with them and we had good vibes among us.

I hope to see them soon...
