

THE CLOWN

One day, my friend came to my house to spend some time together. She slept at my house, and when it got dark, we had dinner and went to bed. We were talking at 3 am and began to hear footsteps at the window. We got really scared and we waited for the steps to finish. When the footsteps stopped, we decided to open the blind to see what was outside.

When we opened the blind, we saw a clown at about three meters away in front of my window, looking at us. We got really scared and started screaming for help.

My parents came quickly and we told them what was happening. They went out to see the clown and he was gone. After that, we closed all the windows and doors and went to sleep restless.

The next day, my parents called the police to report what had happened the last night, and luckily, the clown did not appear again.
