

November, 2020 (8A: I don't know what to do).

In this unit we're going to learn to use the modal should / shouldn't for giving advices.

The unit begins with three emails which were sent to a newspaper 'problem page' by men seeking advice.

Respect to vocabulary, we're going to focus on the different meanings of 'get'.

1. Reading

- ① With a partner, talk about the two questions.
- ② In this article, we find the three problems in a British newspaper. After reading, match two pieces of advice to each problem.

2. Grammar

- ① In this activity you have to find and underline seven examples of the modal 'should' and 'shouldn't' in the problems and advice in the Reading.

Let's see when to use the modal Should.

1. We use the modal 'Should' + a verb without the preposition 'to', to give somebody advice or say what you think is the right thing to do.

2. Should / shouldn't are used for all people.

3. We often use I think you should...

I don't think you should...

Examples:

You should wear a suit to the interview.

I think you should change your job.

I don't think you should speak to her.

You shouldn't drink coffee in the evening because it'll keep you awake.
